

Zhun ZHONG

Thesis:

Ideational Divergences between European Union and China: Cases of International Interventions

For me, the most essential reason to study abroad is to work with specific faculty in a specific kind of program. I had been searching for a PhD program involves study on Europe and Asia (especially China), in which my research interest and experience in East Asia and Europe could be coming into play together. Fortunately, I found GEM which offers an perfect opportunity.

Email: zhong.zhun@erasmusmundus-gem.eu [<mailto:zhong.zhun@erasmusmundus-gem.eu>]

Academic Degrees

BA (Beijing Normal University)

MA (Renmin University of China)

Specific Research Title, Area and Promotor(s)

RESEARCH AREAS

EU-China Relations, Ethnicity and Nationalism, International ethics

RESEARCH TITLE:

Ideational Divergences between European Union and China: Cases of International Interventions

PROMOTERS:

- Rafaele MARCHETTI (LUISS-Guido Carli)
- Glen NEWHEY (Université libre de Bruxelles)

Participation in Conferences and Seminars

2012.8 The 12th GR:EEN-GEM PhD doctoral seminar on “Squaring Multilateralism & Multipolarity: Multilateralizing the emerging Multipolar World”, Fudan University. “Multiple Principles for Multilateral Intervention”

2012.7 The 6th CCPSIS annual conferences, Tsinghua University. “The Choices of European Nation-States: The Danish and Irish

Referendums on European Integration

2012.2 The 2nd GEM annual conferences, University of Geneva. “Between Chinese Nationalism and European Cosmopolitanism? Constructed Ideational Gaps in EU-China Relations”